Visit the Parliament Buildings and the Royal BC Museum with Governance and Beyond

by Esther Rzeplinski | Parliamentary Education Coordinator

Last fall the Legislative Assembly of BC and the Royal BC Museum (RBCM) began a partnership to offer BC elementary schools an integrated, day-long program on governance in British Columbia. Geared towards BC's new curriculum, "Governance and Beyond" explores the different ways of governing, beginning with Indigenous ways of knowing and being. The day-long program starts with a Learning Lab at the RBCM and finishes with a guided tour and classroom session at the Parliament Buildings.

The program grew out of dialogue between the Parliamentary Education Office and the RBCM's Learning Department. The majority of elementary school groups already visit both the RBCM and the Parliament Buildings, and there has long been a desire to better complement each other's school programming. This pilot allows for a sharing of knowledge and resources between the two institutions, while also improving the quality of programming that students and teachers receive. Students are able to experience firsthand their museum discussions of democracy when they visit the Parliament Buildings, as well as delve into deeper discussions of First Nations governance at the RBCM.

🍁 STUDENT VOTE 🍁

by Lindsay Mazzucco | Chief Operating Officer, CIVIX

Elementary and high schools are invited to engage their students in the May provincial election through the Student Vote program. Student Vote enables teachers to bring democracy alive in the classroom and empowers students to experience the voting process and cast a ballot on the official candidates running in their local electoral district.

Participating schools receive a variety of educational materials to teach government, democracy and the electoral process, and encourage research into the issues, parties and candidates. Authentic ballots and ballot boxes are also provided for the coordination of Student Vote Day.

Studies have shown that the habits of voting and non-voting are established at an early age and persist over time. By practicing the habits of active and engaged citizenship now, students will be more inclined and prepared to participate in our democracy when they reach adulthood.

To register your class or entire school for this free program, visit www.studentvote.ca or call toll free, 1.866.488.8775.

100 Years of Women and the Vote

2017 marks 100 years since some women in British Columbia were granted the right to vote in provincial elections. Last fall, in anticipation of the centennial year, the Hon. Linda Reid, Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, unveiled a permanent exhibit at the Parliament Buildings entitled 100 Years of Women and the Vote. This celebration also featured the launch of Equal Voice’s Daughters of the Vote – a national program that encourages young women to become engaged in public affairs and inspired to consider public office.

Madame Speaker was joined at the unveiling by both past and present Members of the Legislative Assembly and two young poets who performed original works. The exhibit – on display in the newly named Hall of Honour – highlights a number of significant ‘firsts’ for women elected to the Legislative Assembly.

Comprised of photographic wall installations and interactive kiosks, the exhibit also explores the suffrage movement in BC, biographical information about the featured women, an historical timeline, archival images, original poetry and women’s representation in the Legislative Assembly today.

While the 100th anniversary of this historic legislation is certainly fit for commemoration, it is important to remember that it did not immediately result in universal suffrage for all people in British Columbia. For many, the path to suffrage took much longer owing to persistent racial, ethnic and religious discrimination.

Visit the Parliament Buildings this spring or summer to explore the exhibit, or view the online version of the exhibit here.
